Memphis, Tenn., December S.—
After a day of investigation, during which dozens of persons have been questioned, police and detectives assigned to the case, early tonight stated that they were without clues to the identity of the men or man who is believed to have abducted Miss Jennie E. Rogers, trained nurse, last make some statement as to what happened.

All that the police were able to establish today was that Miss Rogers, who is a trained nurse, graduated from a Memphis hospital, and for several years in charge of a sanitarium at Charleston, Miss., Sunday morning left the home of a relative where she had been visiting, to make day morning, and after holding a trip to Ripley, Miss., to spend the burb, where she was found early

BESIDE CAR TRACK

Miss Rogers is unconscious at the hospital where she was taken after she was found by the crew of a passing street car before daylight today. She occasionally has lucid moments, when she calls for her mother and brother. Physicians say that her condition is serious, and was apparently brought, about by nervous shock, exposure, and lack of food.

Police working on the case tonight their investigation until Miss Rogers regained consciousness and could make some statement as to what happened.

Roper is said by police to have been driving the automobile on the night of December 5 that overturned at Cherokee and Georgia avenues, killing J. F. Hudspeth and seriously injuring himself. Two young women who were in the machine—Miss Cora Morris, of 92 Orange street, and Billie McKinney, of 270 Whitehall street, were slightly bruised and scratched. Miss Morris is scriously ill with pneumonia, according to police, which necessitated the postponement of Roper's trial.

"The eighteenth amendment involves the concurrent authority of state and federal governments for the enforcement of the policy it defines. A certain lack of definiteness, through division of responsibility, is thus introduced. In order to bring about a full understanding of duties and responsibilities, as thus distributed, I purpose to invite the governors of states and territories at an early opportunity to a conference with the federal executive authority. Immigration Problems.

"Our program of admission and treatment of immigrants is very intimately related to the educational policy of the republic. . . I believe in the co-operation of national authority to stimulate, encourage and broaden the work of the local authorities. But it is the especial obligation of the federal government to devise means and effectively assist in the education of the newcomers from foreign lands, so that the level of American education may be made the highest that is humanly possible.

"Closely related to this problem of education is the abolition of child labor. Twice congress has attempted the correction of the evils incident to child employment. The decision of the supreme court has put this problem outside the proper domain of federal regulation until the constitution is so amended as to give the congress indisputable authority. I recommend the submission of such an amendment.

Best Cooks are "the Best"

IN every neighborhood there are women who are considered especially good cooks. This is true because of their long experience, and the fact that they know how to prepare such a wide variety of dishes.

Many of these women made their first cake, or biscuits or salad by reverring to the Gold Medal Cook Book.

The Gold Medal Cook Book contains 761 different recipes, all of which have been thoroughly tested. In it you will find 30 ways to make appetizing salads, 34 different and equally good cake recipes, and instructions for preparing many meats, breads or desserts.

You can obtain a copy of this handy Gold Medal Cook Book simply by asking your grocer for a cook book ticket when you next place an order for Gold Medal Flour.

CLEARING! BRUNSWICK PHONOGRAPHS They're $49.50

THE BRUNSWICK is a fine I phonograph. It is generally regarded as one of the two best makes on the market .- These are cabinet phonographs. In golden oak, fumed oak and walnut cases. Will play all makes of records. In perfect condition. We want to close out these we have (there are eight in all) so from $100 we have marked them down to $49.50.

-Buy on terms if you wish; pay $5 down and $5 a week.

Earrings-

and the odder they are the better I'd like it. That's why I'd choose those earrings at High's Jewelry Sec-tion. I saw some of the most unique designs there priced from 49c to $7.50 or both earrings and necklaces and choose them to match. For when I was looking at the earrings that interested me so, my attention was called to a number of necklaces that matched them perfectly, and the necklaces range in price from 49c to $7.50, which would make a set interested.

A Box of Candy—

in one of those pretty tin boxes in High's Art Department. I'd fill it to overflowing with the very kind of candy that the person I was giving to liked best. The boxes, you know, are priced as low as 12c and on up. Wouldn't that make a lovely gift—and such an inexpensive one!

A Beaded Bag-

for I have yet to hear of a woman who doesn't adore them. No wonder—such handiness. They'll go with you on a shopping trip or to the theater and feel perfectly at ease both places. And the lovely ones I'd have to choose from if I bought at High's—exquisite things from France—from $4.98 to $30.

A Little Memo-

to a man or to a woman. And ever so many times throughout the year I'd know I'd be thought of kindly and gratefully for helping someone to remember not to forget. Memo pads with leather backs, some of them with small pencils are in with the leather novelties on the Main Floor and priced 75c and thereabouts.

Silk Stockings-

to the woman who has a weakness for lovely silken hosiery—and that's just another way of saying—to any woman on my list. Wouldn't she love these lustrous pure silk stockings with full-fashioned legs—they're silk from top to bottom. She'd never know that the price tickets were changed from $3 to $2.55.

A Silk Petticoat-

because, for one reason, petticoats are the fashion again, and for another reason to fondle and handle and finally choose from the beautiful petticoats with those unusual flounces that I saw at High's. Of radium, Jersey, Milanese or Pussywillow. $1.95 to $7.95.

ACCIDENT PREVENTION.

The possibilities of curtailment of industrial casualties through systematic and scientifically conducted "safety first" campaigns in mines, quarries, factories, mills and other places of "hazardous occupation" are forcefully indicated by the records presented in a recent report of the committee on accident prevention and insurance of the Portland Cement association, Chicago. In this report the committee says in part:

"The most effective work toward prevention of accidents has undoubtedly been done in connection with the twenty-nine accident campaigns which have carried on these campaigns reduced their accidents 48.4 per cent, their days lost 50 per cent and their fatalities 100 per cent, as compared with the same months last

'No Accident Month' campaigns to show the continued effectivecompiled showing the records thirty plants for the years 1920, for thirty plants for the years 1920, 1521 and the first ten months of 1922."

These figures show a reduction in the number of accidents from 1,393 in 1920, to 1,108 in 1921, and to 726 during the first ten months of 1922; in the number of days working time lost, from 21,

THE CONSTITUTION; tured as during the entire year of 1921," which indicates an increase in efficiency in ratio with the increase in personal safety in industrial plants.

> Another significant point made by the committee is stated as fol-

"Thirty-five plants are now carry. ing their own workmen's compensation insurance, and reductions in in many instances, due to the better experience we are able to show. In this connection it is of interest that surance company at our meeting in Detroit made the statement on the floor that in years past cement plants were on their black list, but now they are glad to take all such risks they can get."

This illustrates the fact that care, on the part of industrial plants as to the physical safety of their employees is not only profitable through the reduction of time losses and of expense entailed by accidents, but also in the reduction of the cost of meeting the requirements of the government as to the maintenance of industrial insurance.

From every standpoint safety derices in industrial plants and safety and precautionary education are profitable in the long run, regardless of what they cost in the form of immediate outlay.

And in what the Portland Cement association is doing to prevent accidents in its various plants it is pursuing a policy that ought to be emulated by every industrial institution in the country.

Washington, December 8.—The fight against confirmation of Pierce Butler, St. Paul attorney nominated to be associate justice of the supreme court, was opened fornally today before a senate judiciary subcommittee by Senator-elect Shipstead, farmer-leborite of Minnesota. Corporation connections of Mr. Butler, especially in the present Twin Cities Traction light, were understood to have been referred to by Mr. Shipstead at the hearing which was held behind closed doors in accordance with senate customs. Professor William A. Schaper, of Minnespolis, formerly of the University of Minnesota, of which Mr. Futler has long been a regent, also appeared in connection with his severance from the faculty in 1917 for alleged utterances on the war.

Further hearings on the nomination will be held next Wednesday, the committee, which is headed by Chairman Nelson, of Minnesota, adjourning until then, as Mr. Shipsteal asked for time to present witnesses in support of his charges.

Clemenceau Sees Hope for Europe In Harding Speech

"Tiger" Quotes Reference to Four-Power Pact in Message to Congress.

Washington, December 8 - (By the Associated Press.)-Georges Clemenceau, closing his visit to Washington this afternoon with a "formal" address, expressed the hope that diplomacy would find the way to bring America back into European affairs through what he interpreted as an "overture" by President Harding in the annual message, which the exec utive had read to congress a few hours earlier. "I was greatly comforted," said the war-time premier of France, "when I read in the message of your president the following lines. They are not very long, but they are very suggestive. " 'The four-power pact, which abolishes every probability of war on the Pacific, has brought a new confidence in maintained peace, and I can well believe it might be made a model for like assurances wherever in the world any common interests are concerned.' "So you see," continued the Tiger, "that even those who are supposed to disagree, really agree at the very bottom of the feeling and reasoning

The Challenge of the Bootleggers

A saturnalia of bootlegging seems to be no exaggerated phrase to describe the startling state of affairs to which the Administration calls the nation's attention. Inspired Washington dispatches tell us that the present Prohibition enforcement methods are "debauching and debasing the entire country;" that the President is "deeply concerned over a belief that the moral fiber of the American people is deteriorating through the open disrespect shown for the effort to enforce Prohibition;" and that "the growth of bootlegging, the temerity of rum-runners, and the serious insinuations against Federal enforcement officers have been worrying the Administration for some months," until finally-"With Prohibition enforcement recognized as on the verge of absolute collapse in four States and in a condition of serious demoralization elsewhere in the country, President Harding considered today the issuance of a solemn public appeal to all good citizens to discourage bootlegging as a last resort to administer the law.'

"One way to make Prohibition prohibit," declares the New York Evening Post, "would be to arrest some of the prominent and respectable people who buy what the bootleggers sell."

he prohibition laws and presents the opinions of leading newspapers as to ways and means. Other news-features of current interest and importance are:-

Perry, Fla., December S.—Charlie Wright, negro, accused of the murder of Miss Ruby Hendry, young school teacher, was taken from the sheriff and burned at the stake at the scene of the crime early tonight by a mob estimated at several thousand men.

The negro, along with Albert Young, negro, was taken from the sheriff and his party as they returned to Perry to lodge the two men in jail. Wright had been arrested at Madison, Fla., early in the day and Young was taken at Kinderlou, Ga. Capture of the two negroes came after a six-day search in which hundreds of men from Florida and Georgia counties had participated at one time or another. Will Johnson, Negro, Makes Alleged Statement Implicating Two Others.

Will Johnson, one of the negroes indicted for the murder of Peter C. Poulos in his restaurant on South Forsyth street, has broken down and made a complete confession of his part in the affair, according to information for the part in the second se part in the affair, according to information from Detective Chief A. Lamar Poole's office Friday.

According to the alleged confession, which is said to have been signed by the negro, Chester Johnson, his brother, and Cliff Walker, another negro, recently arrested by detectives, are necused of nurdering the restaurant owner. He states, according to the officers, that he acted as "lookout" and did not see the shooting, and does and did not see the shooting, and does not know whether his brother or Walker fired the fatal shot.

Walker Lired the latal shot.

Robbery and not revenge was the motive of the visit of the three negroes, the alleged confession is said to set forth. The robbery was planned by Chester Johnson, Will Johnson is alleged to have told the officers. The negroes are said to have planned to negroes are said to have planned to securely bind the smaller of the two Poulos brothers and force the larger Poulos brothers and force the larger one, Peter G., to open the safe.
When told that Will Johnson had confessed, Chester Johnson, according to Detective T. O. Sturdivant, who has been directing the investigation, stated that he had planned to rob the restaurant, but denied taking any part in it. Walker, likewise, according to the officer, insists that he is innocent.

Detective Sturdivant and his part-ner, Pat Campbell, have been work-ing night and day on the murder. After the confession from Will John son, the officers kept it a secret until they could apprehend Walker.

Testimony Charges Improprieties to Stenographer in Mississippi Case.

Oxford, Miss., December 8.—Alleged incidents in the life of Miss Frances Birkhead, plaintiff, from early girlhood in the village of Dover, Yazoo county, Mississippi, later in Pearsall, Texas, and during recent years in Mississippi and Louisiana, were told to a jury in United States district court here today by witnesses called by the defense in the trial of the damage suit filed by Miss Birkhead against Lee M. Russell, governor of Mississippi.

Just before court adjourned for the day, Mrs. Russell, wife of the governor, was announced as the next witness, but owing to the late hour court was adjourned for the day before she took the witness stand.

The testimony today dealt largely with alleged improprieties on the part of Miss Birkhead at a dance near Dover, and during her brief residence in Pearsall; of threats the witness declared she made in Jackson in 1920 that she was "going to

The morning session was devoted principally to conclusion of the cross-examination of Governor Russell. His testimony was chiefly a repetition of denials he made previously in detail to all of the allegations made by Miss Birkhead which included a charge of seduction and an alleged promise that he would obtain a divorce and marry her.

he would obtain a divorce and marry her.

"I never thought of such a thing as divorce," Governor Russell said.
"I wouldn't give my wife up for all the women in he world." He declared charges that he had promised to obtain a divorce were unfounded. Testimony as to the alleged conduct of Miss Birkhead at various times ranged from an incident when she is alleged to have ridden astride to serious misconduct.

IF BERGDOLL GETS PARDON, REARREST WARRANT AWAITS

Philadelphia, December 8.—A bench warrant was issued today by Federal Judge Dickerson for the arrest of Erwin R. Bergdoll, should he receive a pardon for the remainder of the four years' sentence he is serving in the federal prison at Leavenworth. Kan., for evading army service during the war. A plea for Bergdoll's pardon was made a few weeks ago and a decision is pending.

The warrant calls for his arrest on charges growing out of the evasion by himself and his brother, Grover C., of the draft requirements. Erwin was convicted by a court-martial at Governors Island, for desertion in time of war. Neither Erwin nor Grover C. were tried in the federal courts here and the case still hangs over them.

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMON. Constitution Bureau, Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, December 8.—(By onstitution Leased Wire.)—"Lame neks" resulting in such large num bers from the recent November elecions, have come to be a serious problem with President Harding.

From white house spokesmen it transpired today that there are several times more applications on file for high government posts than there are vacancies, with Mr. Harding in are vacancies, with Mr. Harding in a quandary as to what selections to make. Not enough jobs being on hand to go around, there will be many disappointments when the vacancies are filled, it is said, and the final outcome may find dissension within the republican ranks.

At the white house recently, mention was made of the "large supply of talent" available for the opening on the supreme court, caused by the

Can Not Play Favorites.

Friends of the president point to the 70 odd members of the house and 10 of the senate, who will go out of office next March in order to show the pressure on him, having been a part of the official life of Washington, all of them want to remain, it is said. The circumstances, in a way, have been likened to those following the inauguration, when the capital was swamped by a veritable flood of job seekers. It differs only in that the present applicants have been prominently identified with the legislative end of administration affairs, being through their support of administration affairs, being through their support of administration. # "Julius Caesar" Proves Week's Most Pleasing Play

Able members of Fritz Leiber's Shakespearean company came to the front at the Atlanta theater Friday, and in some respects outstarred the star. And, incidentally, they presented probably the most enjoyable and wholly pleasing play of the present Leiber engagement.

Mr. Leiber chooses to assume Mark Antony in the play, leaving the more dominant Brutus to that excellent actor, Louis Leon Hall. This course turned out well, as Mr. Hall not only acquitted himself with credit, but carried the burden of nearly all the big seenes in a play which is full of scenes which test the metal of the ablest players.

Dramatic interest is, perhaps, sustained more steadily in this than in any of the Shakespeare's play, and, moreover, it is singularly free from the prosy recitative found in some of the others, with the possible exception of some of the lighter components in that classic well known in every country which begins "Friends, Romans and countrymen." So it looks like basketball fans of Atlanta are coming into their own with a bang—and also a boom.

The A. A. C. team is at the height of its strength. In spite of the loss of three of its old stars, namely, Scott. Westmoreland and Morrison, it will be able to offer one of the strongest combinations ever coming from that club. That's a broad statement, for the A. A. C. in past years

Coaches of both the Albany "Y" and the A. A. C. quintets have done whatever it is they do when the final practice has been completed before a big game, and the 1922-23 basketball season will be efficially and efficiently opened here tonight on the Atlanta Athletic club court by these two Georgia teams, which are generally conceded to be the best combinations worked up in the state thus far. The game starts at 8-30 o'clock.

Many practices have been called, and much work has been done in preparation for this clash. The Albany crew expected a battle and has prepared for one. Joe Bean didn't expect a battle until the other day, but since being warned by one well versed in the art of basketball, he has done some of this preparing with a decided emphasis.

There is absolutely nothing to keep this game from going down in basketball records of the season which is about to commence as one of the most brilliant of the year's aggregation, and it is doubtful if there is an individual who ever trod Dougherty county soil who doesn't believe with heart and soul that the Albany quintet will make a praiseworthy showing.

There are people in this old world who can stir up just as much enthusiasm over one of these basket games as the most ardent and intoxicated football bug can work up over a glorious grid battle. And there are people right here who would steal St. Louis for the reward of witnessing a game of basketball and who would not drop a dime in a Salvation Army kettle for a box seat on the gridiron.

Philadelphia, December 8.—William T. Tilden II., national tennis champion, declared today he would consider for 1923. Discussing for the first ten for 1923. Discussing for the irst time his prospects since he lost the first joint of the middle finger of his playing hand, the champion was pessimistic about the future.

Tilden said it would be necessary for him to build up an entirely new system of play, and that many of his trick plays would be lost to him. Confidence in his shots, he confessed, would be greatly undermined.

"I will have a nice orthodox game next year," he lamented, "nothing flashy and a few forcing strokes. I am certain now that what is left of my middle finger will be stiff and virtually useless in gripping a racquet. That means all my strokes in which this finger plays a part will have to be changed or modified."

The men's 160-yard relay; open style, was won by the I. A. C. team. The time, a new world's record, was 1:14 4-5, two seconds lower than the old mark. The winning team was composed of Weismuller and McGillivray.

May Compromise.

It was stated by many delegates after adjournment that failure of any provision in the rule as it stands now to outline any manner in which college baseball players could accept pay for their services means that the practice of permitting college men to accept money will be done away with unless something further is accomplished today. It is believed some compromise will be effected.

The strict migratory rule, as adopted last year by the conference, and which has served since as a pattern for other college athletic associations, was modified to a certain extent, but purpose of the conference.

After a brilliantly waged battle by Dr. Marion Rucker, of the University of South Carolina, to repeal the entire rule, an amendment was adopted that a student migrating from one college to another could not compete in the branch of athletics in which he participated at the school he left. This means that a football player leaving Georgia, for example, could play oase ball or some other sport at Tech, atter he had complied with conference requirements, the one-year rule, etc. He will not be permitted, however, to play football. This is the same migratory rule that has been proposed for Harvard, Yale and Princeton.

Yellow Jackets to Play Penn State, Notre Dame, Away From Grant Field

No Definite Announcement Given Out by Tech Officials, But General Trend Of Opinion Says Two Trips.

BY JOHN STATON.

Tech officials have virtually decided to play both the Penn State and Notre Dame games away from home. Nothing definite has been accomplished but the general drift now strongly inclines in that direction.

That being the case Tech will come tage to face to face to face with a real situation in the state of the probability of the proba strongly inclines in that direction.

That being the case Tech will come face to face with a real situation when September 27 rolls around. For two reasons: First, the 1923 Tech schedule will be the most ambitious and comprehensive ever attempted by a southern institution; second, with only one game on the schedule which might be called comparatively easy, and that a thriller in itself, Tech will have several hard rows.

After the first game. Teeh stands an equal or better chance to get beat in every other remaining game. Each of the other teams to be played has finished a successful season. Prospects for these individual schools seem to indicate that an even better team may be expected in 1923.

There are two teams which are entirely new on the Tech list, V. M. I. and Kentucky. Florida has not graced Grant field in many a moon, but Tech used to play around quite a bit with the Alligators way back yonder in the gray days. Two more. Notre Dame and Penn State, will be met for the second time. Georgetown comes here for the fifth time; Alabama for the second since the received the second since the received that the twenty-fifth time. So we will have quite an appetizing array to offer. -Meets Jackie Carr.

The fight loving public will be treated to action a-plenty Tuesday night at the auditorium when Pro-

Civil Shows Speed. "I want to get a good line on this fellow Civil, as I think he has the makings of a real heavyweight contender." said Walk "In his workout against Tiger Flowers and the other boys he shows the speed of a middleweight and he can take them as hard as they can give out wincing."

When Civil faces Dugan he meet a willing fighter who is not the least bit afraid of swapping punches, so this match should be a performed before Atlanta fans on numerous occasions, but have never before been matched in a bout against each other. Both Carr and Benson have demanstrated in past battles that they can take as much punishment as any fighter in the game and then come back for more. When these two willing fighters toe the mark against each other there is sure to be a fast hard scrap before the referee can announce a winner.

Anothering interesting bout on the card is an eight-round match between colors.

Next Week, "Sherlock of the Sea" By Maurice Drake

"Invitation? I invite you. Come straight to the reception at the Whatehall rooms," she begged. "Sir Edward is calling for me, and Braillot will go down with us. Later, if you care to, you can drive me home."
"Don't you think," he suggested "that Italian poet in the summer, so they tell me. She was certainly in Madrid in October with Bretoldi, the sculptor. These men are all great artists. Think what she must have learned from associating with them. Now Louise Maurel, so far as we know, has never had but one lover, the prince of Seyre, and has been faithful to him all the time."

"It means Louise," he answered smiling. "She has just this moment sisted, when at last they were seated teathers.

smiling. "She has just this moment gone away."

"Louise, I suppose I must tolerate," she said.

There was a knock at the door, and the waiter entered with the cocktails.

"Come," John said, as he took one from the tray, "I will tell you some through the tray, "I will tell you some through the tray, "I will tell you some to think about. I hope that you will be glad—I feel sure that you will and I want you to be the first to drink our, healths—Louise's and mine. Louise does not want it talked about for a day or two. We have not made any plans yet."

"Did you say that no one keep to the tode the reception to dight. They spoke first of the French woman, Latrobe, and her lovers; then of Louise. Latrobe, they said, had lovers by the score—Louise only one."

Sophy's hand stole into his.

"I think I can guess," she whispered. "Don't hurt yourself telling me. Something was said about the prince!"

His eyes blazed down upon her.

Louise does not want it talked about for a day or two. We have not made any plans yet."

"Did you say that no one has been told yet—no one at all?"

"No one except Stephen," John assented. "That is why I went up to Cumberland, to tell him."

"You have not told the prince?"
Sophy asked, dropping her voice a little. "Louise has not told him?"

"Not that I know of. Why do you ask?" John inquired, looking into Sophy's face.

"I don't know," she answered. "It just occurred to me. He and Louise have known each other for such a long time, and I wondered what he might have to say about it."

John laid his hands upon the poisonous thoughts that had stolen once more into his blood, and told himself that he had strangled them. He swept them away and glanced at his watch. "Let's have some dinner before I change, down in the grill room—in a quarter of an hour's time, say. I don't want to be at the theater before the second act."

"His eyes blazed down upon her.

"You, too?" he muttered. "Does the whole world know of it and speak as if it did not matter? Sophy, is it true? Speak out!"

"You must not ask me that question, John," she begged. "How should I know? Supposing it should be true, remember this—your idea of life is too absurd. I don't believe there is a dearer or sweeter woman breathing than Louise, but one must have love. Don't I know it? A man may be strong ehough to live without it, but a woman—never!"

John rose slowly to his feet. It was as if he were being drawn forward out of himself to meet some coming challenge.

Toward their table the prince was slowly making his way. His eyes were fastened upon John. If he had been drinking, there were few signs of it.

He came to a standstill beside them. Sophy's fingers ciutched at the table-cloth. The prince looked from one to the other. "You have robbed me of a guest,"

CHAPTER X.

The reception in honor of the little company of French tragedians was a complete success. The only person, perhaps, who found himself curiously ill at ease was John. He had been wandering about for more than an hour before Louise discovered him. She at once left her place and crossed the room to where he was standing by the wall.

"Cheer up!" she begged, with a delightful smile. "I am afraid that you are being bored to death. Will oun not come and be presented to our guests?"

"For goodness sake, no!" John implored. "I have never seen one of them act, and my French is appslling."

Louise looked into a neighboring mirror and gazed critically at her own reflected image.

"Please go hack dear." John begged.

"I drink to you both with the greatest pleasure," he said, looking life."

"Please go back, dear." John begged promptly, "It was nice of you to come at all."

"That it would be a rather good opportunity to announce our engagement?"

"Not tonight!" she pleaded.

The telephone bell rang as they were leaving the room. John put the receiver to his ear, a moment later held it away.

"It is Sophy," he announced, "Shall I tell them to send her up?"

"Suddenly he remembered the highly of the receiver of reaching the street.

Louise hesitated for a moment.
Then she came over to John with a tremulous little smile at the corners of her lips.
"Dear," she said, "I am in strange frame of mind today. I don't want to see Sophy. Tell them to said.

"Dear," she said, "I am in strange frame of mind today. I don't want even to see Sophy. Tell them to send her up here. She can wait for you while you take me out the other way."

"May I tell her?" John asked, as he rang for the lift. "She has been such a good little pal!"

"Perhaps you had better, dear," she agreed spiritlessly. "Only tell her not to breathe it to another soul. It is a such a good little pal!"

"John!" she exclaimed. "You, of all people in the world! Is anything she agreed spiritlessly. "Only tell her not to breathe it to another soul. It is to be our secret for a little time—not long—just a day or two longer."

When he came back to his room. Sophy was curled up on the couch with a cigarette between her lips. Sht looked at him severely.

"I am losing faith in you," she actlared. "There are signs of a hurried departure from this room. I am love that the other end of the room there. Let us get away to your corner quickness.

had better ask Louise that question yourself, don't you?"

He asked it an hour or so later, when at last the party of guests had taken their leave, and, somewhat to the well-bred surprise of the one or two friends who lingered, Louise had beckoned to John to take her out to the car. Her hand had sought his at once, her head rested a little werily but very contentedly upon his shoulder.

"Louise, dear," he began, "once or twice I have wondered whether vou have ever cared in any sort of way, or come near to caring, for the prince of Seyre?"

"Louise, dear," he began, "once or twice I have wondered whether vou have ever cared in any sort of way, or come near to caring, for the prince of Seyre?"

"I think that once—perhaps, twice." "The prince recled back, his had to his mouth, blood dropping upon the tablecloth from his lips, thought have killed him."

THE BEST CHANCE.

How easy it is to say cynical things about marriage.

Every daily paper with its reports of divorce, and eternal triangles, and murders for jealousy, and sordid struggles over matters of alimony, will provide you a text if you want it.

And so the smart and cynical and depressing things are said and sometimes we lose sight of that fact that there are such things as happy marriages and that to achieve one is to give yourself the best chance of enduring happiness.

The Greatest Earthly Happiness.

"There is no earthly happiness."

"There is no earthly happiness exceeding that of a reciprocal satisfaction in the conjugal state," said an old philosopher.

How true that is!

We have heard it said that a true marriage halves our sorrows and doubles our joys so often that we have to come to make fun of that statement as a bromidion. But it's true just the same.

Marriage has many inconveniences, many annoyances, many restraints, just the same.

Marriage has many inconveniences, respectively.

Marriage has many inconveniences, many annoyances, many restraints, many sacrifices. But if it is a true marriage it has enough comradeship, enough tenderness, enough sympathy, to counterbalance these twice over.

When passionate love is gradually transmuted by the years into that blend of tenderness and friendship which is true married love, it forms the best possible background for happiness that exists in all life.

It Takes Brains. It Takes Brains,

It Takes Brains.

True, it is not easy to achieve a successful marriage any more than it is easy to achieve success in any line. Character and brains enter into the making of it. Forbearance and a sympathetic imagination. Nor can it be made by one. Any more than one partner could make a business a success if the other gave him no co-operation. Nor can it be made if a year and then left to itself any more than a business could be left to itself. Says Cowper: "The kindest and the happiest pair will find occasion to forbear and something every day they forbear and something every day they live to pity and perhaps forgive." Of this difficult business of under-standing, and making oneself under-

Alice: "It might be worse—he might be only sixty-nine.

No. 156—Curtain Fixtures.

Until recently custom demanded fixtures that were invisible when the draperies were in place. But now ornamental curtain hardware is receiving attention. Within the past few years metal tie-backs and rosettes have come into use again and a few metal window cornices are being used. The practical value of these curtain devices cannot be overestimated. They are light if weight and are easily adjusted. The use of a metal cornice permits of a freer treatment of many windows.

Where formerly we would have had to use a valance or unsightly rods, we can now use a metal cornice, With these metal cornices go tie-back rosettes of brass or brass and glass.

Where curtains are planned so that no hardware will show the rods should be as light as possible. Unlined curtains are usually hung on rods three-eighths of an inch in diameter, while glass curtains are often run on quarter-inch rods. Circular rods are more frequently used, but flat rods are made for hanging glass curtains that are to be kept permanently across the window.

LONG BLACK LASHES.
One of the readers wants to know why I do not tell people how to have long, thick, dark eyelashes. She particularly admires long lashes and wants to know why all actresses, movie and otherwise, possess them while so few ordinary mortals can boast of similar attraction. Her ideal of beauty, she adds, is the magazine cover girl with her huge eyes and her long, sweeping lashes.
We are so used to an artificial style of beauty in magazine illustrations that I suppose my correspondent would not believe me if I told her a magazine cover girl come to life would be freakishly homely. Through a gradually accepted standard of exaggeration she possesses eyes larger than her mouth, just as all the women in fashion drawings are at least eight feet high while they balance themselves on mere snippets of feet.

There is a curious phonographic instrument, the invention of Poulsen, carpable of reversing the sounds of powers or a sentence. A steel piage wire, carried on two spools, passes between the poles of a small electromagnet so connected with a telephone transmitter that spoken words are magnetically recorded on the moving wire and reproduced in a receiving site and reproduced in a receiving instrument. When the motion of the wire is direct, the words are heard as in ordinary conversation, but if the motion is reversed, the sounds come to the ear in reverse order, like words spelled backward. To represent the order in which the reversed sounds strike the ear, however, not only must the order of the letter composing a word be reversed but each letter must itself be reversed from right to left, as when reflected from a mirror.

vails at this show which is the first of its kind ever staged in Atlanta. The presented by the Co-operative Radio Sales association of Atlanta. It has a second the same that the exposition.

A center of continual activity is the booth occupied by the government exhibit in charge of Radio Inspectors L. C. Herndon and L. E. Richwein. of Norfolk. Their coast system of radio protection has been explained scores of times to the many interested radio people who wist the shaw daily.

Tancill, the radio wizard, with his unique display of radio-controlled apparatus, including working models, packs the space about the stage to very time he brings his apparatus; out forms a demonstration.

One of the features of last night's show was the radio wedding of, Miss Sarah Grace Buile and Harry F. Bagwell, of Flowery Branch, Ga. 11 created a great deal of interest among those at the show.

Today will see the close of this show the only one of its kind ever show, the only one of its kind ever sheld in the south. Plans are being show, the only one of its kind ever sheld in the south. # STEADY UNDERTONE

MARKS N. O. COTTON

New Orleans. La., December 8.—
The more important price movements in cotton today were due to statistics and they gave the market a very steady undertone, but without, however, arousing any very great buying power. Ginning returns to the first of December of 9,138,144 bales just about met expectations on the long side: mill takings for the week of side: mill takings for the week of 437,000 bales against 383,000 this week last year were altogether larger than expected and sent the market to its highest levels, 24.57 cents a ill takings for pound for January and to net gains on the list of 15 to 23 points. Small recessions occurred in the late session, under realizing on the long side, and the market closed at net gains of 11 to 15 points, with the January position at 24.47.

Better cables than due helped to cause a higher opening. During the first call the ginning figures were received from the census bureau but their effect was almost completely offset by the effort of traders on offset by the effort of traders on the long side to take profits on the hard spot they felt would be created. First gains amounted to one to four-teen points, near months being much stronger than the distant. Following the call, offerings increased to such extent that the market was forced

For a while the market remained depressed and trading became light but the weekly statistics caused a new period of activity and strength which lasted until longs went to realizing again in too large a way. Various reasons for yesterday's advance are offered. First, short covering because many stocks will soon sell ex-dividend. Second, that rails showed a decrease in net earnings of twenty millions below same period October. 1921.

However, the list showed net advances and net declines. The market is not due to advance as a whole. It is too diversified. Activity will occur only in groups affected by conditions of the moment. The specialties, and oils particularly, seem to be in the limelight.

Equipment stocks are very promising. Their earnings are controlled more by shortage of skilled labor.

Munds-Winslow—Think cotton has definitely turned for the better and look for higher prices.

Logan Bryan—The buying side at favorable opportunities seems the logical one to follow in our way of thinking.

Bache—Although we only look for a trading market for the next few days, we believe purchases at this level will shortly prove profitable.

Weld—Are still of opinion that cotton will ultimately sell much higher and adhere to the policy of buying on recessions.

Liverpool, 12:30 P. M.—January 10, above parity. Spot sales, 5,600; midding at 10 a. m. expected to approximate the national ginners figure of 9.200,000. Local sentiment more friendly. Solution made its appearance just after the opening.

New York, December 8.—The ginning report was about as anticipated this morning. On the decline, Liverpool and the trade were good however and a local sentiment more field. Solution in the cotton of the content of the correction of the correct tion made its appearance just after the opening.

On the decline, Liverpool and the trade were good buyers absorbing the offerings and the market soon turned strong and advanced selling appeared to check the market.

The undertone is much better and sentiment is becoming more favorable toward the market as it is believed that the vanced selling appeared to check the market.

The undertone is much better and sentiment is becoming more favorable toward the market as it is believed that the European situation is improving materially.

New York, December S.—Accumulated features developed today for consideration in cotton and the reading is bullish. In the first place the ginning report tends to indicate a crop hardly in excess of 9. 710,000 bales and as this is driven home to force place the ginning report tends for force place place the ginning report tends for force place place the ginning report tends for force place place place the ginning report tends for force place p

The next feature is spinners' taking of 443,000 bales for the week means a rate of distribution that is impossible of being maintained on account of inadequate supplies and shipments of this volume naturally strengthen the reading of statistics as to the remaining cotion available.

The London conference is regarded as of the ulmost importance and there is a strong undercurrent of feeling that great constructive good will be developed therein and have its reflex action nopon commerce. With the exception of a temporary period of weakness immediately after the market's opening demand was good throughout he day with the undercurrent of confidence as to prices bolsfered up greatly by the conditions here cited.—Orvis Brothers & Co.

Stock Market Declines, Quickly Rallies, and Then Does It All Over

BY R. L. BARNUM, Constitution's New York Financial Correspondent.

New York, December 8.—Opening a fraction lower, the stock market sold off and rallied and then did the same thing over again. Trading was light. President Harding's message to congress was well received in Wall street, especially the part which rec-ommended railway mergers and that the railroad labor board be abolished New York, December S.—Heavy selling of some of the speculative railroad labor board be abolished with a substitute for it in members of the interstate commerce commission with power to prevent strikes.

It is realized however there is lit-and about financing exports of foodstuffs. Many traders expected that the message would prove bullish, and they bought in accord with that belief.

Summaries of the message failed to equal bullish anticipations, and there was a good deal of wheat selling on the part of early buyers. The market eased down in consequence, but the decline brought about a renewal of plexion of today's stock market underwent an abrupt change for the better when speculators for the de-cline were compelled to abandon their efforts on the short side because of their failure to bring out any large volume of stock. Rails proved a vul-nerable target to early pressure, but industrials offered better resistance and it was the strong buying power appearing in such leaders as Baldwin, United States Steel common and Stu-debaker that turned prices upward again after noon.

The partial recovery in railroad shares was stimulated by publication of President Harding's message to of Fresident flarding's livesage to congress, approving railroad mergers and the pooling of equipment and recommending abolition of the railroad labor board and the substitution of a labor division of the interpolity, alive, lower; fowls 13@20c; state commerce commission with Dowrigerator Drats 21022846.

CHRISTMAS ALMOST HERE

(The following is issued by the committee on church co-operation.)

Thanks to street cars and automobiles, most of us live what a few years ago would have been half a day's journey from Five Points. As Christmas draws near we, whose motor cars are trolleys, and that is the majority of us, have an advantage over the motorists flying city-ward.

We see life already pulsing with the spirit of Christmas.

This morning, waiting for a car on a corner, where a smiling traffic cop cares for the children crossing on the way to a school close by, we saw stop a limousine, which seemed an enormous animated bouquet. It was packed, apparently, almost to bursting with small boys and girls, whose wistop a limousine, which seemed and tossed at every window.

Out they jumped, leaving a five-inch wite wooly dog, with eyes like burnished black shoe buttons, racing mally back and forth across the broad top of the back of the rear seat, and wainly yelping against the plate glass window his despairing protests at being left behind.

Children of every age and description, blue-capped, gray-onpped, brown-capped, red-capped and wearing fluttering little capes and coats, that shamed Joseph's coat of many colors, and the coated fox terrier, marked with tan. Vere still it law; the street most the bookstraps. Their going bit another dog, a rough-coated fox terrier, marked with tan. Vere still it law; the street most the bookstraps. How that pup, lying so quiet in the road, would have enjoyed being in on that.

Then, came the reward for moving forward. A smiling girl moved up a bit, and there was a seat, from which one looked into the kindly, smiling face of Mrs. Felton, Georgia's woman senator, beaming from the poster pasted in the window across the aisle. The first woman to sit in the United States of the care of some heart less juggernaut, nor by the swinging, swaying coach of a feelingless Marquis de St. Evremonde, with no regard for ordinary folk, but by one of the people's own motorcars, a street car, whose driver and owners would doubts less have willingly sacrificed their own lives rather than to have brought first woman to sit in the United states. senator, beaming from the poster past-ed in the window across the aisle. claims again the birth of the baby cradled in the manger, who came to bring the spirit of Christmas, not just for one day in the year, but for every day, and for all eternity itself.

That spirit speaks in the tinkling bell of the Salvation Army lassie on the corner, summoning us to keep the pot a-boiling, and in the appeal of the Five-Way drive now going through Atlanta. Each of these great agencies is an instrument in the hands of Almighty God for helping little people.

Remembering: "A little child shall lead them," we'll help them.
